

Designation: F2662 – 08 (Reapproved 2020)

Standard Guide for Minimum Training of Dispatchers and Telecommunicators of SAR Incidents<sup>1</sup>

This standard is issued under the fixed designation F2662; the number immediately following the designation indicates the year of original adoption or, in the case of revision, the year of last revision. A number in parentheses indicates the year of last reapproval. A superscript epsilon ( $\epsilon$ ) indicates an editorial change since the last revision or reapproval.

1. Scope

1.1 This guide establishes the minimum training standard as it relates to general and specific knowledge, skills, and abilities (KSA), for existing dispatchers (who have met the requirements of Practice F1258), 911 (emergency) operators, and telecommunicators to be trained for the processing and dispatch of potential and actual search and rescue incidents.

1.2 This standard does not purport to address all of the safety concerns, if any, associated with its use. It is the responsibility of the user of this standard to establish appropriate safety, health, and environmental practices and determine the applicability of regulatory limitations prior to use.

1.3 This international standard was developed in accordance with internationally recognized principles on standardization established in the Decision on Principles for the Development of International Standards, Guides and Recommendations issued by the World Trade Organization Technical Barriers to Trade (TBT) Committee.

3.1.1 agency, n—an SAR or emergency response entity such as an SAR team, military unit, or emergency management, police, or fire service with SAR responsibilities.

3.1.2 automatic aid, n—aid given by another agency, automatically upon dispatch, when written into dispatch guidelines or protocols. Automatic aid is generated by your Communications Center by simultaneously requesting or notifying the outside resource upon initial dispatch of incidents. Automatic aid should be arranged for search and rescue incidents and programmed into your CAD (Computer Aided Dispatch) system.

3.1.3 “emergency” and/or “lights and siren” response, n—an Emergency and/or Lights and Siren response is where an appropriately trained person operates and responds in a vehicle equipped with emergency lights and siren in order to enable a more timely response to a scene or other location.

3.1.4 follow-up report and information, n—critical or valuable supplemental information gathered and reported to responders after initial dispatch.

3.1.5 mutual aid, n—aid given by another agency, case by case, when requested by a member of a responding agency.

3.1.6 SRD, Search and Rescue Dispatcher, n—a dispatcher who processes calls for potential and actual search and rescue incidents (See Triage and Dispatch for SAR Managers and Telecommunications).

4. Significance and Use

4.1 This guide establishes the minimum training standard as it relates to general and specific knowledge, skills, and abilities (KSA), for existing dispatchers, 911 operators and telecommunicators to be trained in the processing and dispatching of potential and actual search and rescue incidents. A person trained to this guide is a Level I (basic) SAR Dispatcher.

4.2 Every person who is identified as an SAR Dispatcher shall have met the requirements of this guide.

4.3 This guide is to be used by individuals and agencies having jurisdiction who wish to identify the minimum training standards for Level I SAR dispatcher.

4.4 This guide is only the first level of training for Search and Rescue Dispatcher (SRD) personnel, and as such, only
